392 Salary Basis Policy

The Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) is a federal law which requires that most employees in the United States be paid at least the federal minimum wage for all hours worked and overtime pay at time and one-half the regular rate of pay for all hours worked over 40 hours in a workweek.

However, the FLSA provides an exemption from both minimum wage and overtime pay for certain employees in particular job functions which meet certain criteria regarding job duties and salary.

Salary Basis Requirement: Being paid on a “salary basis” means an employee regularly receives a predetermined amount of compensation each pay period. The predetermined amount cannot be reduced due to quality or quantity of the employee’s work. Subject to certain exceptions, an exempt employee must receive the full salary for any workweek in which the employee performs any work, regardless of the number of days or hours worked. Exempt employees do not need to be paid for any workweek in which they perform no work. If the employer makes deductions from an employee’s predetermined salary, i.e., because of the operating requirements of the business, that employee is not paid on a “salary basis.” If the employee is ready, willing and able to work, deductions may not be made for time when work is not available.

- Employers may make full or partial day deductions from an exempt employee’s pay in the following circumstances:
- Absence from work for one or more full days for personal reasons (not sickness/disability);
- Absence from work of one or more full days due to sickness/disability if the deduction is made in accordance with plan, policy or practice of providing compensation for salary lost;
- To offset amounts employees receive as jury or witness fees, or for military pay;
- Unpaid disciplinary suspensions of one or more full days due to workplace conduct rule violations;
- During initial or last week of employment;
- For penalties imposed for infractions of safety rules of major significance;
- When employees take unpaid leave under the Family and Medical Leave Act.

It is Greene Arc’s policy to comply with the salary basis requirements of the FLSA. Therefore, we prohibit all company managers from making any improper deductions from the salaries of exempt employees. We want employees to be aware of this policy and that the company does not allow deductions that violate the FLSA.

If you believe that an improper deduction has been made to your salary, you should immediately report this to your direct supervisor, or to Human Resources. Reports of improper deductions will be promptly investigated. If it is determined that an improper deduction has occurred, you will be promptly reimbursed for any improper deduction made.

402 Financial Accountability Procedures

The following procedures are to be followed regarding the security and accountability for handling of the individual's finances:

Each staff will count and document the balance of the individual's spending money using the new Personal Account Ledger with the balance check-off log listed on the back. This is to be completed each and every time a staff member starts and ends his/her shift. If the amount counted does not balance, the staff member must note this and then notify his/her supervisor or the on-call supervisor, whichever is applicable.

The file cabinets which contain the individual's finances and records must be kept locked at all times. The staff will be responsible to ensure that there is never a time when those cabinets are kept unlocked. The key(s) must be kept secure by staff as well. This means they must be kept in an area that is only accessible to other staff members. The residential supervisor of each site will inform the staff, in writing and through a staff meeting, the procedure that will be used for each respective site.

Checkbook Documentation: Each staff is to initial by each entry he/she makes in the individual's checkbook ledger. This will help eliminate confusion regarding questions pertaining to an entry of purchase, withdrawal or deposit.

Note that if the above listed procedures are not followed, it will lead to disciplinary action.

If you have any questions please do not hesitate to ask your direct supervisor or the Director of Residential Services.
